APM Programme Management SIG - 2022 to the future

The APM Programme Management SIG has had a very successful year, with a great range of webinars, blogs and new knowledge resources. Particular highlights in 2021-22 were:

- Our first podcast which was a panel debate on creating successful programmes using benefits management

- Publication of an infographic summarising the differences between programmes, project and product management

- Return to face to face with our joint conference in March with the APM Portfolio Management SIG hosting a wide range of speakers discussing successful delivery in the midst of rapid change.

Working with our programme practitioner community (ProgM Focus Group) we have lots of activity in the pipeline including a refresh of the Introduction to Programme Management Guide and our 2023 conference. In 2022 we will be focusing on three objectives:

- Raise awareness within APM membership of programme management as a specific discipline

- Facilitate the connection of programme management practitioners within the APM membership to share knowledge and good practice

- Develop and support thought leadership in programme management.

APM Programme Management SIG is open to new ideas; always listening to, and learning from, others. We welcome contributions from all members of the community of practice.
