

Nick Fewings

Cracking the code of high-performance teamwork

Whilst project management methodologies and the use of technology are important factors in achieving success, it must not be forgotten that people deliver projects.

An understanding of WHO is in your team, WHAT it exists to deliver and HOW effectively individuals within the team work together, will greatly enhance your chances of success.

In this presentation, Nick Fewings, CEO of Ngagementworks will share with you his knowledge and experience of working with teams from around the globe, helping them to achieve high-performance. He will provide hints and tips on how to measure who is in your team, how to achieve clarity and common understanding of what your team exists to do, as well as sharing the Team DyNAMics Model that he created and is being used effectively by teams to help them work more effectively and efficiently.

Nick Fewings is a team performance expert, behavioural psychologist and an award-winning facilitator and conference speaker. Nick has over 20 years' experience of leading and working with teams, helping them transform and achieve greater success. He is an accredited project manager and a former Change Director in Barclays, leading the people workstream of global projects.

He works in the UK, Europe, Far East, Middle East and USA. Nick has spoken at over 500 conferences. His style has been described as "infotainment".

When not working with teams or speaking at conferences, he regularly publishes articles to help individuals and teams.

In his leisure time, Nick loves travel, is a keen amateur photographer and supporter of Plymouth Argyle. His claim to fame is that he was the first person born in Plymouth to complete the Edgewalk around the outside of the top of the CN Tower in Toronto.

APM Project Initiation: Set up for Success

Building high performing teams

Scope definition and requirements capture

www.apm.org.uk/event