Haris	Jaswal	Student	I am an registered electronics engineer originally from Pakistan. I attended couple of APM events and I can see the potential APM has in the arena of Project Management. So many things and projects are going on around and it would be some great learning for a person like me to be a small part of APM this way. This will be a great learning experience for me while being part of the committee and I am sure I will take some great learning experience from here. Being part of such an esteemed and professional organization would be something that will boost my career in the future. I have few ideas regarding student engagement at APM so this will be platform that will help me share my ideas with the members and we can try to engage with the members of the South East wing of the organization. I would like to play my positive part as much as possible. Another thing I have in mind is to make some presence of APM in Asia. So, this would get me some opportunity to incorporate and engage professionals there and broaden the spectrum of APM as much as possible.	I have a work experience of more than eight years in government, private and development sector. I thing that my experience in diverse sectors have enabled me to mold myself according to the requirement and allow me to learn from different organization settings. I have been a team player throughout my academic and professional career and I always believe in togetherness. I think that the outputs are enhanced and value is created in the results when a mutual consent is there in any project. Being a student, I think can be a diverse addition to this committee who has experiences in different sectors and I think my participation will bring some diversity to the committee. I have always believed in progressing and I am a learner. I always try to learn and improve myself and the same instinct I think I would bring to this committee. An exclusive part I think would be participation of an international student in the committee and it will potentially open some new avenues of foreign collaborations.	I think I would be available to spend some good time as I would not be having my classes during time, I can fully participate in the branch activities for at least more than 25 hours on average or if there would be some formal engagement then this time would be increased accordingly.
Mark	Jordan	Full	Having had to step down from the Committee due to moving abroad for a year, I now return a fresh.	With over 15 years of previous SE committee experience, I have experience dealing with APM admin duties, organising events and liaising with our membership.	I am happy to spend enough time on branch activities to get the job done well.....as long as everyone else contributes in their own way as well.
