PROJECT PROFESSION

Statements

Our vision is a landscape (both UK and internationally) within which organisations have adopted good practice in the governance of change with impressive and targeted results from their portfolio of change initiatives.

Governance (APM Body of Knowledge 7th edition)

The framework of authority and accountability that defines and control the outputs, outcomes and benefits from projects, programmes and portfolios. The mechanism whereby the Investing organisation exert financial and technical control over the deployment of the work and the realisation of value.

Suggested SIG adoption for debate

The framework of authority, accountability, behaviours and culture that define and control the outputs, outcomes and benefits from projects, programmes and portfolios. The mechanism whereby the Investing and contracting organisations exert direction, financial, ethical and technical control over the deployment of the work and the realisation of value.

The APM Governance SIG has adopted the following rationale for the adoption of good governance – “Achieving Change Outcomes Successfully with Confidence and Control”

The target community for the SIG efforts is Board members and their equivalents (CxOs) and those that influence them

Our key priority activities for the next year (to link to apm strategy) are:

- Engage and Collaborate
- Knowledge and Research
- Grow membership

SIG Objectives

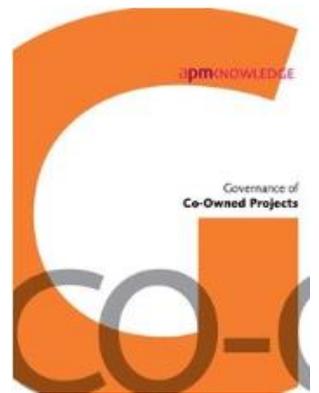

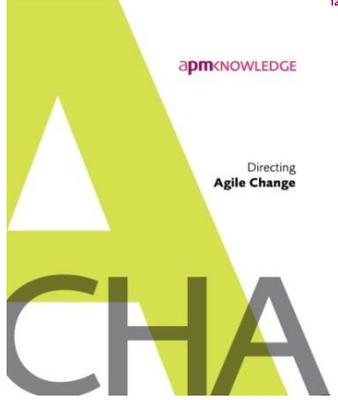

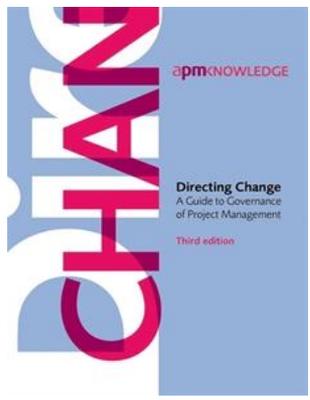

- Be the focus and reference for those interested in the governance of change today and in the future;
- Advance the understanding of governance of change;
- Contribute towards the development of good practice in the governance of change;
- Influence national and international standard making authorities to improve their impact on the governance of change;
- Influence those accountable and responsible for the governance of change to improve their practices; and the role of good change governance in organisational success;
- Engage, excite and develop the SIG members to become ambassadors and exemplars of excellent governance of change.
