

Karen Thompson

Co-founder and director of Responsible Project Management, Karen is an innovative educator and researcher working at the intersection of project management and sustainable development. She holds fellowships at The Schumacher Institute, the Association for Project Management and Advance HE, is a member of the Adjunct Faculty at the University of Southampton, an Expert in Project Management at the University of Vavuniya, Sri Lanka, and a member of the Project Management Institute's Curriculum Review Committee. Previously a Senior Academic at Bournemouth University Business School, her roles included Acting Departmental Head, Head of Education & Professional Practice, and Programme Leader for the world's first MSc Organisational Project Management. She has been a judge for ENACTUS and East London Community Heroes Awards. Her work has won awards for teaching excellence (PMI UK), research impact (APM), innovation in project management (PMI, UK) and project management for social good (PMI, UK).